

Dr. Daniel Rusyniak is the Chief Medical Officer for the Indiana Family and Social Services Administration (FSSA). He is also a Professor of Emergency Medicine at the IU School of Medicine. Prior to his role at FSSA, Dr. Rusyniak was the Medical Director for the Indiana Poison Control Center and the IU Division Chief for Medical Toxicology. He has had a sustained research career with multiple NIH grants. His work has focused on the prevention of complications related to drug overdose and misuse. He has authored over 70 articles, 13 textbook chapters and edited 4 books.

Dr. Daniel E. Rusyniak, M.D.

Chief Medical Officer
Indiana FSSA
